Overview

The digital age has been with us long enough to make some practical predictions of how traditional roles of libraries will change in information selection, acquisition, synthesis, navigation, dissemination, interpretation and archiving. New responsibilities in information aggregation, publishing education, research and development and policy advocacy will be explored. This webcast promises to offer a lively and provocative discussion.

Speakers:

James G. Neal: Vice President, Information Services & University Librarian, Columbia University

Barbara Jones: Wesleyan University

Bob Doyle: Illinois Library Association
