Overview
This national teleconference will take an in depth look at copyright issues facing librarians and educators in the digital age. This program promises to be both challenging and thoughtful. Featured library experts will share their thoughts and projections for the future of copyright in the digital age.

You will have a chance to ask the presenters questions and give them your feedback. On the day of the program you may phone, FAX or e-mail your questions to the presenters.

The program will feature the perspective of three leading copyright experts:

• Carrie Russell, Copyright Specialist, ALA Washington Office
• Kenneth Crews, Professor, Indiana University School of Law
• Edward Valauskas, Follett Chair Library & Information Science, Dominican University
