Program Description

Podcast Producer is a complete, end-to-end solution for encoding, publishing, and distributing high-quality podcasts. Ideal for employee training, lectures, presentations — or whatever audio or video podcasts your organization requires — Podcast Producer simplifies the process of recording content, encoding, and publishing podcasts to services like iTunes U, YouTube or campus Web and streaming servers.

In this LIFT Forum session, Richard Glaser will provide an overview of Podcast Producer. He will discuss software and tools options for capture like Web and iPhone interfaces, 3rd and open source encoders like Episode Podcast, VLC and Handbrake. Details will be provided of the J. Willard Marriott Library project, classroom implementation and future plans, and demonstrations.

Podcast Producer is being implemented by many institutions like MIT, UC Berkeley, Stanford School of Medicine, Penn State, Oxford University, etc.

Presenter

Richard Glaser is the Head of the Mac Group at the J. Willard Marriott Library, Computer and Media Services. His group provides administration, integration, support and instruction for Apple client, servers, mobile devices for many of the campus student labs, library staff/faculty and patrons, and campus.
